JOIN THE EVOLUTION

The American Filtration & Separations Society (AFS) is a non-profit, educational society whose mission is to provide a forum for exchange of information among engineers, educators, scientists and technologists in all areas of the fluid/particle separations field. In addition to hundreds of individual members, the AFS Society has a large corporate and consultant membership that spans the filtration and separation industry, as well as component suppliers as sponsoring organizations. The Society holds semi-annual technical conferences expressly developed to advance the state of the industry and educational knowledge base through face-to-face collaboration, providing the perfect platform to showcase your products and technologies.

NETWORKING

AFS members appreciate the opportunity to connect with other industry professionals and peers. Many members feel that building these personal relationships contributes to their individual success. To help foster networking, the AFS hosts networking events both locally and nationally, as well as, through online forums such as LinkedIn.

SHARING OF EXPERTISE

The AFS seeks to educate newcomers to the field and experienced professionals throughout their careers through educational initiatives - including short courses, One-Minute-Filtration articles, student poster competitions, and the publications of academic, peer-reviewed articles.

ADVOCACY

The AFS seeks to inform industry, academia, the general public and the media of the importance and largely untold story of the Filtration and Separation Industry in North America, its long-term socio-environmental impact, and its future potential for the greater good.
